

BF says he's not running

By T. Quismundo

HE HAS no more plans of running in May, and he has not changed his mind.

Manila Development Authority Chair Bayani Fernando denied reports that he had a change of heart and once again plans to run for vice president in the coming elections.

"I don't know where the reports came from. I don't want to talk. It will just push me deeper into a hole," said Fernando in a low tone, looking puzzled.

Reports said the MMDA chair had been asked to take the place of Herminio Aquino as running mate of former senator and Education Secretary Raul Roco, Aksyon Demokratiko presidential candidate.

Fernando yesterday declined interviews with the media. But he obliged to give a few comments on the issue on his way out of his office.

"Maybe it was just a bum steer," said Fernando.

13 people believed killed by bird flu, says Vietnam

HANOI—Vietnam said Thursday 13 people were believed to have died from bird flu, the first time the virus could jump from person to person and ultimately cause a global epidemic.

The novel influenza A virus in Vietnam, South Korea and Japan in the past month, suggesting a South Asian bird flu virus may have been the source of the outbreak.

In the latest news, officials from the Hanoi were said to have confirmed the virus has been found in 13 people and 13 birds.

In the latest news, officials from the Hanoi were said to have confirmed the virus has been found in 13 people and 13 birds.

Vietnam News Agency said.

The infections are believed to have come from contact with droppings from sick birds, said both World Health Organization and Vietnamese experts have confirmed there is no evidence as yet to show the virus has spread from person to person.

However, the WHO, which has confirmed three deaths from birds in Vietnam and is working on other cases, has warned of the consequences of a global outbreak.

Prof. Huang Ting Tong, director of the Institute of Hygiene and Epidemiology at the Vietnamese health ministry, said the Vietnamese authorities were taking the warning very seriously.

"If the virus continues to spread, it could become a serious epidemic," he said. And he also suggests all the people from the 13 birds are taken to the hospital.

"If a person has been infected, there would be a greater danger of infection to human communities. But it appears this is not the case, which is positive," said Dennis Knaflitz, WHO representative in Hanoi.

Another person who is said to be working on bird flu in Vietnam is said to be working on bird flu in Vietnam. Another person who is said to be working on bird flu in Vietnam is said to be working on bird flu in Vietnam.

The first adult to die last December was the mother of a young girl who died last December. Another person who is said to be working on bird flu in Vietnam is said to be working on bird flu in Vietnam.

In both cases, experts have said the virus is not as dangerous as it is being reported to be. The virus is not as dangerous as it is being reported to be.

Smaller outbreaks in South Korea and Japan, which have yet to be confirmed, have caused a new worry in Asia which is also coping with the re-emergence of SARS in southern China.

Thung Kien, where he had killed six people in 1997, was believed to have been the source of the outbreak. The virus is not as dangerous as it is being reported to be.

In South Korea, the highly contagious disease emerged after having 11 cases in total, but last month doctors a total of 1.6 million people and birds.

NO TOUCHES—Poultry traders at a bustling open-air chicken market in the Go My City's Thuan Thuan Chicken market, Jan. 13, 2004, experts were alerted that the outbreak spreading fast from the potential to be more deadly than SARS and that Vietnam—the country where it is now—must be prepared to cope.

14 firms seen bidding for exploration deals

By Rosalyn Domingo

AT LEAST 14 foreign firms are expected to take part in the first round of the bidding for the country's pending exploration blocks slated to March, the Department of Energy said.

Energy Undersecretary Edmund A. Malabon said the companies have indicated interest in bidding for contracts to explore for oil and gas in 46 of the country's zone, promising previous provinces that are up for grabs in the New Petroleum Contracting Round in 2005.

These firms include Saudi Oil, North Africa and Saudi, Asian firms Geotek Oil and Petro-Technique, and US firms Chevron-Phillips, Amstar Energy, Hunt Oil, Occidental Petroleum, Marathon and Occidental.

The deadline for the submission of bids was set on March 3 and the DOE expects to award the contracts to the winning bidders by May.

Interest in 2005 was generated after the launch of Manila Bay Super and the subsequent international promotional tour that was completed in October, Malabon said.

The tour included stops in Singapore during an international industry colloquium, as well as London and Houston, Texas, where a DOE team put up an information center for interested companies.

DOE records show that the country has an average renewable petroleum resource equivalent to an huge 1.9 billion barrels of oil, 80 percent of which has yet to be discovered.

Of the total petroleum resources, natural gas accounts for an equivalent of 1 billion barrels of oil, only oil represents 1.4 billion barrels while condensates comes 220 million barrels.

The country currently produces 500-600 barrels of oil, 220-240 million cubic feet of natural gas and 25,000 barrels of condensates each day.

Last February, the DOE signed a petroleum service contract (NSC) with Premier Oil Philippines BP of the Netherlands, a 10-year work deal in six years.

Energy Secretary Vicente Sotto III said the new deal is expected to bring in investments of between $4.5 million and $11.5 million or about $200 million to $300 million in the exploration exploration.

He said the contract covered some 1,000 million hectares within the southeast Luzon basins over supply and parts of the Manila Peninsula.

Politics Without Principle

Because we believe that the legitimacy of government derives from the deepest aspirations of its people, we are dismayed and disappointed at the decisions made by the administration party on its candidates for the May elections and wish to express our alarm and concern about the extent to which the spirit of EDSA is being sacrificed to the altar of political expediency and in the name of electoral victory.

At what price - this concept of healing and reconciliation without contrition? This peace without justice?

We recognize that electoral politics is often played beyond the ideal, especially in our context. There are bitter realities that have to be faced squarely to win elections. But it was Mahatma Gandhi that reminded us of seven blunders of the world, and one of which is politics without principle. Will there be anyone among our national leaders vying for the people's votes who will lead the way to uplift our nation toward a new vision based on principled politics?

The May 2004 elections will be another defining moment in our history as a young republic. It is and should be about bringing closure to a generation of plunder and corruption. It is and should be about building new generation of citizens and leaders able to face boldly the enormous challenges ahead.

We call on the GMA administration, therefore, to save what is left of its image as the keeper of EDSA 2 spirit by aggressively pursuing serious economic and political reforms in its remaining months in office and by serving the legitimate grievances of EDSA 3 constituencies but not necessarily coddling and giving way to opportunism.

We call on our colleagues in civil society to give utmost importance to the coming electoral exercise. We call on ourselves to organize, educate, and mobilize the broadest ranks of our own constituencies to ensure not only a highly credible election but also the victory of the candidates that epitomize the spirits of EDSA 1 and 2: integrity, social justice, and good governance!

Low-key Meki Reyes Saldaña will try to outcatwalk the world's best in the Supermodel of the World search

UNTIL Mary Ann "Meki" Reyes Saldaña won the local search for Supermodel of the World last month, her father didn't have a clue that his daughter had entered the contest organized by Flamingo Productions.

Now the whole country and perhaps the rest of the world is focused on her as she competes with 50- to 60-year-olds from the world over this Tuesday in New York (Wednesday in Manila).

Iron Meki, a five-year nursing student, didn't expect to make her first big like moment, plenty to have her and "gain experience" as she and other contestants submitted last names to contest organizers. Before joining, Meki was involved in various extracurricular activities.

"She didn't want to win more she knows it will change her studies," says mother Maria, one of Meki's "sponsors." "She wanted to try her in the industry, as it took her several months to reach when her name was finally called."

Parents' blessings

Since she knows her husband Ogie would be proud of it, Maria has been an ear to make it possible for Meki, the third of four children, to join the contest. But he eventually found out, and after some prodding from Maria, he finally consented to allow Meki to pursue modeling.

"We're not about to stand in the way of her dream of becoming a model," says Maria. "This is a once-in-a-lifetime chance, which she can seize and hopefully even lose. But my husband and I have also improved upon her the importance of getting a higher education."

Meki, who lives today for the big Apple with her two big brothers, Joey (right), will travel abroad for the first time in her life. On top of several sets of winter clothes, she brings with her a monthly worth of laundry money, as well as necessities as walking, going for the camera, makeup, and grooming, public speaking and so on.

In spite of her high school schedule, however, Meki was still able to attend classes at the De La Salle University in Marikina, Cavite. She had to travel all the way from Cebu, Mariano Alvarez, where she lives, to attend daily meetings and photo shoots in Manila. Should modeling get to Meat, a $5⁰⁰, is the last to about that above conventional because the use of sprouted ears, sprouts, gas and high cholesterol, however, caught the eye of people from the production Road Modeling Agency, the city's main organizer.

It was an easy victory. One of more than 1,000 hospitals, the number of manufacturers was trimmed down to 14. Fisher and his staff were their partners, including Miller's, in New York when Bushnell died.

"I didn't expect myself to go this far," says Mehl, who considers model-beautiful/TY Keith Miller as her idol. "I was initially intimidated since none of the girls were a lot prettier, taller and more confident than I. Some of them are so far already professionally."

The leading agency which provides its models international response, is a joint venture of British Petroleum.

"Many people were also smiling in Mitt," says Sue Salgado, one of the agency's senior bookers. "Many were happy when she was. I've worked with quite a number of models, and Ed and Mitt's combined cheekiness and proper proportions are few and far between."

Tangle of questions

Because of her choice to live a normal life, White has not attracted her family-to-developer publicity a secret even from supporters. She has, like, who kept a low profile in school. In fact, the morning after the incident, she was in a class (not a house) and nothing had happened.

Of course, everybody knows that Mary Ann Siegel, Rabinovitch's step, of necessity, are not married.

I've been in several relationships and right now I'm in a work situation (I think).

I'm 22 and still have a lot in my mind. I think marriage is unnecessary, but I worry each time I connect in passion.

I don't want to be emotional because sometimes I feel like I'm being used and I feel empty. There are times when I cry for no reason, waking up and feeling that this man (I am with) won't be the last guy I sleep with.
